Because in legal matters, language matters

Personal Injury & Medical Negligence

Medical negligence and personal injury claims can be complex and challenging, but when there is also a foreign language element, solicitors need to take extra care to ensure they do everything they can for their clients.

There are broadly two situations in which you might need the assistance of a legal translator in a personal injury or medical negligence case:

Firstly, if you are dealing with a case involving an accident, illness, or medical treatment of an English speaker abroad.

Second, where you are dealing with the case of a non-English or non-native English speaker who has suffered an accident or injury, or where they received medical treatment in the UK, which has gone wrong.

Personal Injury and Medical Negligence Translation Services

We help clients with language services across a broad range of accidents and injuries:

- Medical Assessments
- Medical Reports
- Police Reports
- Witness Statements
- Medical negligence

We understand the majority of the medical professionals practising in the NHS or privately are diligent and caring but mistakes do happen and when they do the patient is left lost, confused, and without support. The consequences for both the patient and their family can be devastating and often unimaginable.

With IMD Translation, you can trust that your documents will be handled with professionalism and expertise, adding value to your case and client, and reflecting the high standards of your practice.

Medicolegal appointment?

IMD Translation can provide an interpreter, remotely or in person, to facilitate communication between you and your client, or ensure smooth communication and understanding at medicolegal appointments.

Contact our team today at info@imdtranslation.co.uk today to discuss how we can add value to your case.

In the fast-paced world of finance and accounting, precision in communication is as crucial as the numbers themselves.

Whether you're a private equity house, an accountancy firm, a finance department, or navigating complex legal financial matters, our ISO-certified practice ensures that your documents are accurate, compliant, and culturally aligned.

Financial Translation Services

We can help make sure your numbers count, whatever the language.

We make sure your numbers make sense through accurate translation, including:

- Fiscal Reports
- Insurance Policies
- Bank Statements
- Financing Agreements
- Balance Sheets
- Tax Reports
- Investor Communications

Accurate translation can help ensure legal compliance, risk mitigation, transparency, and clarity.
